

A "SURE THING" GAME.

The question is being constantly asked:

"Why don't stocks go up when the mines are looking so well?"

The man who asks such a question is certainly very verdant.

There is absolutely no connection between the condition of the mines and the fluctuations of stocks. Stocks go up or down, as the insiders may desire.

It is as easy to break the market when the mines are looking well as when the drifts are in porphyry.

The men who manage the stock market are not in the business from a sanitary standpoint.

They know that the public will buy stocks on favorable reports, and hence they sell at that time. If there are no buyers there can be no sellers.

The managers and manipulators sell when the fools are keen to buy. The fools get the stock and the manipulators the money.

Again, the brokers get a never-ceasing percentage on every transaction.

It is like running a keno game. The small percentage doesn't look large, but if twenty-five men play keno all night, the man who runs the game will have nearly every cent in the crowd by morning.

Stocks give the insiders a sure thing on the money of the fools who play at the game.

The men who manage the deals would nearly all rob their mother's coffin if she were buried with any jewelry on her person.

The market ranges up and down to suit a few men who are wallowing in wealth, the proceeds of a business very much akin to burglary and highway robbery.

It is the surest game for the insider ever invented, and curiously enough, it is fully protected in this country by the laws of States, which refuse to charter lotteries.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

A new political party, probably intended to dispute the field with the Farmer's Alliance, has been organized in Minnesota. It is styled the National Association and is secret in its working though it will not be exclusive. Its objects, as stated in an address to the people are to provide political education for its members by means of a course of discussions on political subjects. It purposes selecting candidates for public offices from debaters by vote of the lodges within the jurisdiction of the office for which the nominations are made.

The organization is to be extended through all the States as rapidly as possible and by next year have sufficient strength to warrant the association in nominating a President for the United States.

Forty lecturers and organizers, it is announced, are about ready to start out throughout the country to establish new lodges of the Association, but no intimation is given of the political principles which the organization will advocate.

It is thought that the Manhattan mines at Austin will be started again in the near future. Litigation was the cause of the mines being shut down, and the President of the company says active operations will be commenced again if he can have the assurance that no more litigation for past causes will be instituted.

A Washingtonian got in an ugly predicament the other night. After retiring, the folding bed "closed up" on him, standing him on his head and rendering him entirely helpless. His screams brought assistance, and he was soon released.

Some people are naturally slow, but the slowest we have heard of for a long time are those who made bets with this scribe on the number of rounds on the Corbett and Jackson mill. It seems to take them a long time to settle.
